Spironolactone 100 mg 3 times per day, Lactulose 60 cc's 3 times a day., GENERAL OBSERVATIONS: , Mr. Abc, a 54-year-old black married male who was referred for a Comprehensive Clinical Psychological Evaluation as part of a Disability Determination action. Mr. Abc arrived five minutes late for his scheduled appointment. He was accompanied to the office by his sister-in-law who drove him to the appt. Mr.
Abc currently does not receive Disability benefits. This is the first time he has filed for Disability. The Authorization form listed Mr. Abc's current complaints as ""cirrhosis of the liver and mental issues."" Mr. Abc was well groomed and wore casual attire. He looked older than his stated age. The whites of his eyes were very jaundiced. His posture was slightly stooped and his gait was slow. He was winded after walking up the stairs. Psychomotor activity was retarded. Mr. Abc was cooperative throughout the interview. Although he appeared to be answering most questions to the best of his ability, he appeared to be minimizing his emotional distress. , PRESENT ILLNESS: , Most information was provided by Mr. Abc who appeared to be a fairly reliable source. His information was supplemented by review of his medical records. Mr. Abc has applied for Federal Disability benefits believing that he qualifies based on his cirrhosis of the liver and his cognitive dysfunction. Mr. Abc was diagnosed with cirrhosis in 1991.
His condition has worsened to the point that he is experiencing liver failure and is awaiting a liver transplant. He stated that his main symptom is extreme fatigue. He has no energy and is unable to engage in many activities. Over the past year he was admitted to the hospital four times for confusion and bizarre behavior. He stated that his sister-in-law and his wife told him that he had become violent and he fought with the Sheriff who was trying to take him to the hospital. He has no memory of this. Mr. Abc stated that he was hospitalized one time. Actually he had begun having problems with confusion in July of 2004 and he has been treated four times since that time. According to his medical records, he was found wandering outside of his home. He was apparently delusional believing that a tree branch was a doorknob. Mr. Abc also suffers from edema and swelling in his legs and his feet. Mr. Abc attempted to return to work and found that he was unable to do his job due to the necessity of walking one-quarter mile from the front to the back of the plant. He was unable to walk very far without becoming fatigued. He had instances where he had passed out after becoming faint. He had trouble at work sitting for very long because his feet swelled. He was unable to lift the required 10 pounds of medication boxes. When he found himself unable to do his regular job, he tried another job at the same plant but was unable to do that job. He also became confused easily at work. His doctor advised him to quit and then he did so in March of this year. In addition to his cognitive symptoms, Mr. Abc has had some disturbance in mood as well. He related that he feels very sad since he lost his job. A lot of his self-esteem came from working. He worries about financial problems. His sleep has been disturbed. He sleeps four to five hours a night with trouble falling asleep and frequent awakening in the middle of the night. His appetite is fair.

,PERSONAL, FAMILY AND SOCIAL HISTORY:, Mr. Abc completed the 11th grade. He went on to get his GED in 1971. He stated that he has never failed a grade and he has no history of a learning disability. He received no special education services. His grades were Bs and Cs. He stated that he was suspended from school one time for fighting but got along well in general. Mr. Abc is currently unemployed. His last job was at Baxter Health Care where he worked for four years. It was his longest place of employment. He quit in March of 2005 because of fatigue and inability to perform the necessary job duties. He denies that he was ever fired from a job and he reported good work relationships.
